Introduction

Rationale for the Resource Manual

The Pennsylvania Child Welfare Training Program created the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender & Questioning Resource Manual as a guide for Child Welfare Professionals that have attended the “202-3: Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Questioning (LGBTQ) Youth in the Child Welfare System” training. Workers are strongly encouraged to use this manual as a reference tool when working with young adults, youth, and families.

It is estimated that one out of every ten persons in this country has a gay/lesbian sexual orientation. For child welfare workers and other human services professionals, this means that possibly ten percent of the adolescents that we encounter could be gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender, or questioning youths. In order to best assist these youths, child welfare workers need to know the proper definition of terms such as gender identity, sexual behavior, and sexual orientation. They also must have an understanding of their own values and biases, and how these values and biases might influence their behavior toward these youths; the issues and challenges that face these youths; and the resources and assistance that may be available to help these youths.

Recommended Uses of the Resource Manual

This manual gives Child Welfare Professionals additional information about lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and questioning youth. The manual should preferably be used by persons introduced to the manual with the 202-3: Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Questioning Youth in the Child Welfare System training.

By using this manual, you will be provided with information about agencies, organizations and committees throughout Pennsylvania that may be of assistance to you as you interact with youth and young adults that are exploring their sexuality. The information provided includes various contact options ranging from e-mail and web address to phone numbers and physical addresses. This will allow both the worker and the youth to explore a multitude of options based on their level of comfort.

Terminology

The definitions¹ provided on the next several pages may prove useful for navigating the often-confusing world of sexual orientation and gender identity. Please remember, however, not to impose any of these words as labels upon LGBTQ youth. It is vital to ask the young adult/youth how they self-identify and/or about language that makes them feel safe. If they choose to avoid self-identifying terms, honor their decision. This will clearly indicate youth's right to be whatever they perceive themselves to be and to be safe. In no way are these terms to be used by the Child Welfare Professional to label the young adult/youth.

Affirm: To acknowledge or assert as fact; here, to assert one's own sexual orientation or gender identity strongly and publicly or to openly acknowledge and publicly assert the rights and dignity of LGBTQ people.

Alliance: A system which welcomes and incorporates all respectful forms of sexuality as a normal variation in a system based on love, friendship, and acceptance; a Gay-Straight Alliance would be a system in which “gay” (homosexual) and “straight” (heterosexual) people form effective relationships and work for acceptance of all people.

Ally: A non-gay person whose Total Behavior is characterized by anti- heterosexism; creates and seizes opportunities to work counter to heterosexism and homophobia; uses correct words to describe sexuality; use non-heterosexual bias language; may wear a pin or symbol to show alliance and support; will explain symbol when asked.

Androgyny: Exhibiting the identity and/or appearance of both male and female, as neither male nor female, or as between male and female; exhibiting behaviors of either or both traditional genders; a descriptive term that many in the LGBTQ community find offensive; see also third gender and also Two-Spirit.

Bi: a slang term for people with a bisexual orientation and who self-identify as bisexual.

Bisexuality: The Quality World picture of emotional and sexual attraction may be felt for both sexes.

Butch: Slang term for individuals who exhibit characteristics or behaviors traditionally considered as masculine; sometimes derogatory; also sometimes used by lesbian women or gay men to self-identify with varying notions of gender.

Camp: Deliberately affected or exaggerated style, sometimes for humorous effect.

Closeted: The intentional concealment of an individual's own sexual orientation or gender identity.

Cross Dressers: Preferred term for people who usually self-identify with their biological sex and gender but who sometimes wear the clothing, jewelry, etc., of the opposite gender to fulfill emotional needs.

Dyke: A derogatory word for a lesbian and/or for any woman who projects the role, appearance, attitudes, and/or behaviors that a culture traditionally assigns to males; also reclaimed by some to identify with varying notions of gender.

Equality: The state of being equal in regard to status, rights, opportunities, and treatment.

Equity: The state of being fair and impartial; here, fairness in opportunities and treatment under the law.

Faggot: A derogatory word for a gay male and/or for any man who projects the role, appearance, attitudes, and/or behaviors that a culture traditionally assigns to females; also reclaimed by some men to identify with varying notions of gender.

Female-to-Male (FTM): A person born or assigned at birth as biologically female, who identifies as a male and who takes the sex, gender, and identity of a male through dress, mannerisms, behavior, hormone therapy, and/or surgery.

Feminine: A term used to describe the socially constructed and culturally specific gender behaviors expected of females; see also masculine.

Femme: A slang term for an individual who projects a traditionally feminine gender role; sometimes, but not always, derogatory; also used by some to self-identify regarding gender.

Gay: Persons who feel romantic, emotional, and sexual attraction to the same sex; a term used to proclaim self-acceptance and self-affirmation. The term 'gay' is often used to describe both men and women.

Gay-Straight Alliance (GSA): Formal organization of LGBTQ and straight people in support of the dignity and rights of LGBTQ people, usually in the context of and to create change within educational institutions and environment.

Gender: Social and cultural expression of sex; not biological sex.

Gender Conformity: Acting within the culturally expected gender role for people of one's biological sex.

Gender Dysphoria: A medical term for unhappiness or discomfort with the gender role assigned by one's culture to one's biological sex; a term disliked by many transgender people as implying that there is something wrong with them; may or may not coincide with sexual dysphoria.

Gender Expression: The ways in which an individual communicates gender identity to others through behavior, clothing, hairstyle, voice, and/or the emphasis or de-emphasis of bodily characteristics; not an indication of sexual orientation; behaviors and traits used publicly to express gender identity – as masculine or feminine or something else; also called gender presentation.

Gender Fluidity: The belief that social constructions of gender identity and gender roles lie along a spectrum and cannot be limited to two genders; a feeling that one's gender varies from societal notions of two genders.

Gender Identity: This is the gender that an individual person most believes, through their Total Behavior and QW pictures, is the gender with which they most identify.

Gender Neutral: Anything (such as clothing, styles, activities, or spaces) that a society or culture considers appropriate for anyone, irrespective of gender; anything that carries with it no particular gender associations.

Gender Presentation: The ways in which an individual communicates one's own gender identity to others, through behavior, clothing, hairstyle, voice, and/or the emphasis or de-emphasis of bodily characteristics; not an indication of sexual orientation; behaviors and traits used publicly to express one's gender – as masculine or feminine or something else; also called gender expression.

Gender Role: The cultural and societal expectations that exist as a result of the gender with which we most identify. These expectations are expressed through our Total Behavior, which, alternate to gender identity, is always chosen.

Genderqueer (also Gender Queer): People who reject the normative societal construct of gender and view their own identity as unrelated to such gender constructs.

Genetic Sex: Defined by the 23 rd chromosomal pair, coded XX for female and XY for male, although other chromosomal code sets also exist.

LGBTQ: standard acronym for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and questioning people; variations exist, such as including an I for intersex and a second Q for queer.

Heterophobia: A fear or distrust of heterosexual people and of anything associated with heterosexuality, often based on negative life experiences.

Heterosexism: The assumption that everyone is heterosexual (or should be) and that heterosexuality is the only 'normal,' right, and moral way to be and that, therefore, anyone of a different sexual orientation is 'abnormal,' wrong, and immoral.

Heterosexuality: The QW picture of emotional and sexual attraction is felt for person of a gender other than his or her own.

Homosexuality: The QW picture of emotional and sexual attraction is felt for persons of the same gender.

Identity: What, how and who one perceives oneself to be; a multi-faceted self-concept that evolves throughout life.

In The Closet: Also referred to as “closeted”, which means that one’s LGBT identity is concealed; some choose to give the impression of heterosexuality, as a means of self-protection.

Intersex: Having some degree of ambiguity in regard to primary sex characteristics (genitalia) or being born with predominantly male or female genitalia that medical professionals deem to be physiologically 'incorrect,' usually addressed through medically unnecessary surgery during infancy; a condition that may apply to about one in 2,000 infants; sometimes offensively called 'hermaphroditic.'

Intervention: Action to change a situation for the better; a deliberate, organized effort to improve the circumstances of one or more individuals by altering the environment, policies, and/or circumstances facing or affecting those individuals.

Isolation: The state of being or feeling alone and apart from, or unable to connect with others; a cause of deep emotional distress for any person.

Lesbian: A woman who feels romantically, emotionally, and sexually attracted to other women; a descriptive and socially acceptable label that homosexual women often prefer because it offers an identity separate from that of homosexual men; a term originating from Lesbos, an Aegean island and the home of the Greek poet Sappho, a woman who loved women.

Male-to-Female (MTF): A person born or assigned at birth as biologically male, who self-identifies as female and who takes the sex, gender, and identity of a female through dress, mannerisms, behaviors, hormone therapy, and/or surgery.

Out: Can mean several things, including: coming out being a process or coming to integrate sexual orientation with the total self; the act of telling others of your gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender orientation; can indicate being open about one’s orientation with some persons, but still hidden with other persons.

Pansexual: A term of choice for people who do not self-identify as bisexual, finding themselves attracted to people across a spectrum of genders.

Passing: A term for those who successfully assume a gender role and gender expression different than the one to which they were born or assigned at birth; also may refer to closeted gay, lesbian, or bisexual people passing as straight (please note that in some cultures, passing refers to successfully assuming a different racial/ethnic or cultural identity).

Power: Having the ability to do something or to act in a particular way; here, the freedom and ability to acknowledge openly one's sexual orientation or gender identity without fear of oppression, discrimination, injustice, violence, or abuse.

Prejudice: Bias; an attitude that favors one person or group over another; here, favoring: one sexual orientation and/or gender identity over any other; an attitude that usually leads to discrimination.

Pride: National, citywide, and neighborhood local events and programs, usually during the month of June (see Stonewall) in celebration of the ongoing fight for equality for LGBTQ people.

Primary Sex Characteristics: Physical characteristics present at birth and that are used by those around an infant to determine its biological sex, including penis and scrotum to identify the infant as male or vulva, vagina, clitoris, and labia to identify the infant as female.

Privilege: Special rights, advantages, or immunity granted to, or assumed by, certain groups and considered by them as their right; for example in the United States, privilege accrues mostly to whites, to heterosexual people, and most of all, to white, heterosexual males.

Sexual Behavior: Total behavior, which can indicate sexual action or sexual abstinence.

Sexual Dysphoria: A medical term for unhappiness or discomfort with the biological sex to which one was born or assigned at birth; describing a disconnect between one's internal sense of gender identity and one's outwardly apparent biologic sex; a term disliked by many transgender people as implying that there is something wrong with them; may or may not coincide with gender dysphoria.

Sexual Identity: One's personal self-evaluation based on information, Total Behavior, and a focus on what gender that person is most sexually attracted to.

Sexual Orientation: Based on our QW pictures and feeling behaviors, the sex or sexes to which we are most attracted to on many levels; seems to be driven by genetics.

Sexual Reassignment Surgery: Surgical procedures that modify one's primary and/or secondary sex characteristics; formerly called a "sex change operation," a phrase now considered by many to be offensive.

Stonewall: Referring to riots at the Stonewall Bar in New York City on June 27, 1967; often cited as the birth of the modern LGBT civil rights movement.

Straight: a slang term for a person with heterosexual orientation.

Third Gender: A category for those who do not self-identify as either masculine or feminine and who believe that they belong to an alternative gender.

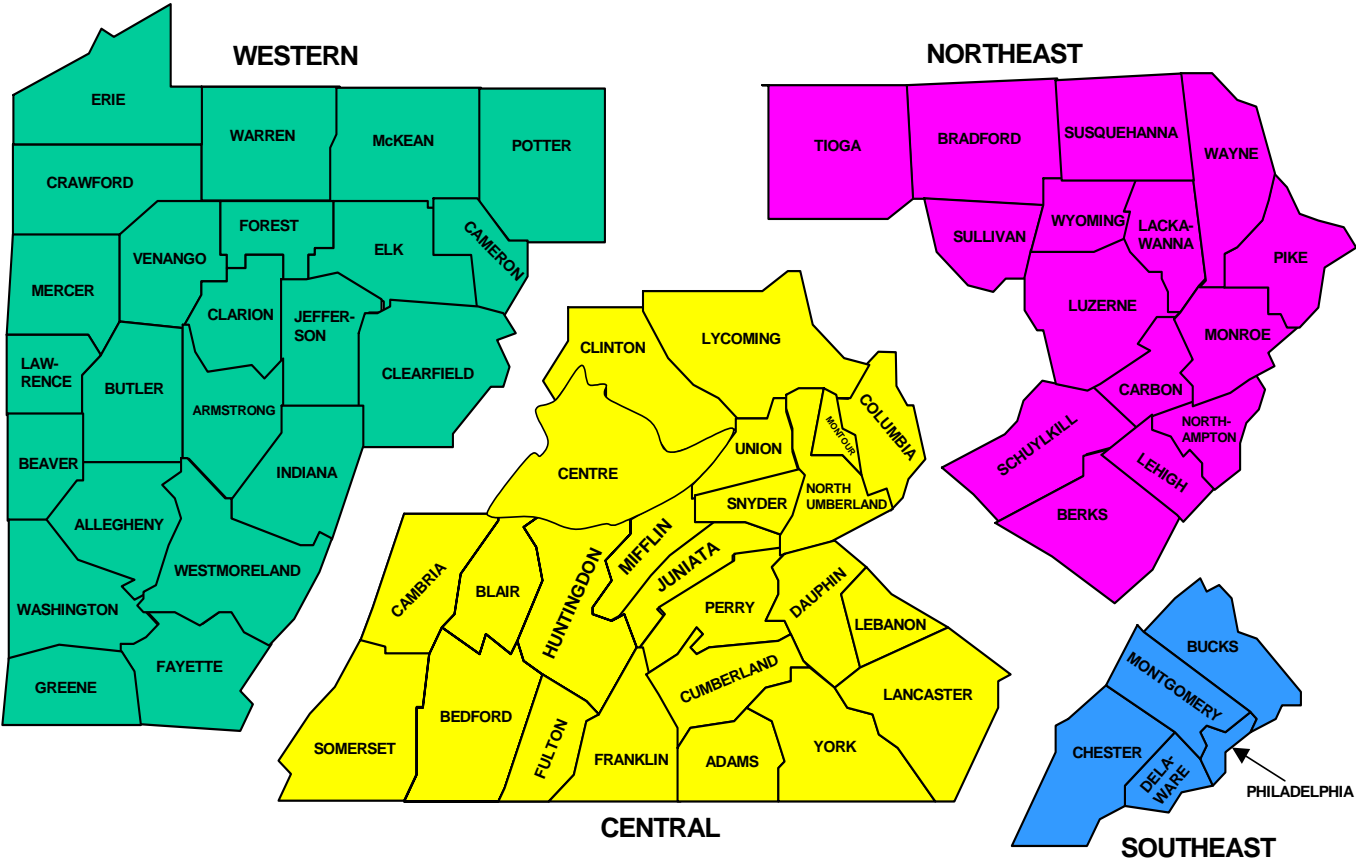

Trannie: a slang term for transgender people; considered offensive by most.

Transsexual: Refers to a strong feeling component of Total Behavior, which suggests a person's biological gender identity and a person's anatomical gender is incongruent; the person often feels trapped in a body that is the wrong gender.

Transvestite: Also known as a Cross Dresser, refers to a person who dresses in what is typically dress for persons other than the gender of the transvestite; for erotic pleasure, may feel quite natural to the person; may be homosexual, heterosexual, transsexual, or just participates in the behavior and enjoys the gender that he/she is.

Two-Spirit: A term whose definition varies across Native American cultures, but which generally means a person born with one biological sex and fulfilling at least some of the gender roles assigned to both sexes; often considered part male and part female or wholly male and wholly female; often revered as natural peace makers as well as healers and shamans.

DignityUSA works for respect and justice for all gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender persons in the Catholic Church and the world through education, advocacy and support.

In local chapters across the United States, we worship openly with other GLBT and supportive Catholics, socialize, share personal and spiritual concerns, and work together on educational and justice issues.

Elizabethtown Allies

Elizabethtown College Allies is a gay awareness group; we work to provide an environment in which gay, lesbian, bisexual and straight students can assemble to provide mutual support and to address the campus and community on pertinent issues. We work for unity and harmony among the members of the campus community and the community at large, regardless of race, religion, sex, creed, sexual orientation, national origin, age, handicap, or ancestry. We believe in the right of all individuals to be able to express their sexual orientation equally. Meetings are held twice a month and membership is open to all those interested; we often work in cooperation with Womenspeak, a campus group which addresses gender and women's issues.

The primary goal of the Lavender Letter is to not only inform our readers, but to educate them as well. There is currently a Health Spotlight that features health issues that are of interest to women. The Letter will cover financial issues and legal issues too.

The Men's Covered Dish Dinner

In 1986, a group of gay men organized the Men's Covered Dish Dinners. The association is a non-profit group dedicated to providing social interaction for gay men. The covered dish dinners are usually held the third Saturday of the month at 7:00pm. The gatherings are restricted to men and are hosted at a different location each month.

Hosts volunteer to open their homes to the group and provide soft drinks, paper plates, napkins, utensils, and cups. Those attending bring a covered dish. At each dinner a collection is taken. The donations are given to the Lancaster Gay and Lesbian Helpline to help defray their expenses. A bi-monthly newsletter that includes the dinner schedule, location, directions, and miscellaneous information is mailed to members. Subscription is $2.00 a year. Businesses are welcome to run ads at $30.00 per year.

Students Advocating LGBT Equality is a group of lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgendered and ally individuals. We seek to educate the campus and surrounding communities, to advocate for diversity and open mindedness, and to provide opportunities for group interaction. We also seek to open lines of communication to the administration to create and promote a safe and accepting atmosphere.

We wish to abolish myths that perpetuate homophobia and bring tolerance, awareness, and acceptance of gay men, lesbians, and bisexuals to Shippensburg University. S.A.L.E. is open to all students, regardless of sexual orientation, who share in these goals.

S.A.L.E. was the recipient of the 2004-2005 Office of Multicultural Student Affairs Organization of the Year Award.

The Susquehanna Club

P.O. Box 10122
Lancaster, PA 17605-0122

The Susquehanna Club is a social organization designed to provide recreational opportunities to gay men, lesbians, bisexuals, and "gay friendly" heterosexuals. The recreational opportunities are mostly outdoor sporting activities including hiking, camping, biking, canoeing, rafting and swimming. Monthly outings are held from April through November and generally include camping in conjunction with one other of the aforementioned activities. The organization is in its sixth successful year of operation and its members have enjoyed countless good times. The membership includes a diverse group of individuals of varying outdoors experience.

An annual planning meeting is held in early March each year. If you are interested in the organization or attending the annual planning meeting, please drop us a line, and put it to the attention of the secretary. Thanks!

The Gay/Straight Alliance works to create an awareness of and respect for gender and sexual diversity. Because of the prevalence of heterosexism, transphobia and homophobia, the GSA recognizes the difficulty sexual and gender minority students may have in realizing and celebrating all aspects of their personalities and cultures. By providing educational programs to the Susquehanna University campus, the Gender and Sexuality Alliance will combat myths, prejudgments and fears about gender and sexual minorities and their cultures in order to dispel them. We will sponsor lectures, panels, residence hall programs, discussions, films, showcases, literature and entertainment events concerning issues of sexual and gender diversity.

We provide a safe space for social activities and interaction for queer youth, as well as sexual education, counseling, support, psychological services, and crisis intervention. The Attic is run by the Youth Planning Committee (YPC), a number of Attic members that meet regularly to discuss and plan the Attic's activities, upcoming events, and the overall direction of the group. This makes the Attic the only youth-run youth-only organization in the Philadelphia area. The Attic is concerned with the well being of our youth and our programs and activities are geared towards nurturing and educating them so they can become part of the community in a safe, healthy and loving environment.

Mountain Meadow was started in 1981 by Julie Greenberg, a lesbian Rabbi and mother from Philadelphia, as a feminist summer camp for girls. In 1992,

Rebecca Subar and Merle Berman decided to revive Mountain Meadow, this time designing and implementing a kid-centered, non-profit summer camp for children of all genders with lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgendered and queer (LGBTQ) parents. From the beginning, creating a diverse community and providing equal access to programming for people of varying economic backgrounds was a priority. Their vision was instituted through a sliding-scale tuition policy and a commitment to engaging in yearly fundraising campaigns.

Parents and children have challenges unique to households that do not have issues of sexual orientation or gender identity. Open Door Counseling has developed a program, in coordination with PCHA Education Department, to further support difficult times between parents and children. If you are a parent who identifies as G/L/B/T/Q, or are a parent that has children who identify with G/L/B/T/Q issues, this program could provide needed support. Services offered are Individual or Family Therapy, for specific counseling and educational and peer support groups, to help identify similar challenges with others.

Open Door Counseling at PCHA is a confidential counseling program for Gay/Lesbian/Bi/Trans or individuals questioning their sexual orientation or gender identity. Counseling is offered to youth and adults. Because this counseling program is funded, services are offered at a minimal cost contribution (suggested per session), but no one will be turned away for inability to pay.

Hours of operation are Monday & Tuesday, 11:00am-7:00pm, or Wednesday-Friday, 9:00am-5:00pm, by appointment only. To find out more, please call 215/563-0663, ext. 209.

The William Way Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Community Center was formed in 1974, when a group of community leaders came together with the goal of creating a stronger, more stable community center out of Penguin Place, the community center at the time.

After an extensive search, the Community Center purchased the former Engineers' Club of Philadelphia in March 1997. Soon after, renovations began, and the building opened to the public in July 1997. Since then, the Center has developed an array of programming and services that target LGBT groups and community organizations have moved permanent offices into the Community Center. In addition, over 70 groups meet at the Community Center on a regular basis, and many more use the facility for special events. The building is open seven days a week and is currently used by over 2,500 people each month.

GLAAD Dissertation Fellowship

Two fellowships of $5,000 each will be awarded to support graduate student research that contributes to the complicated relationships among sexual orientation, gender identity and media representation. This Fellowship is sponsored by the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD).

The program is open to all students currently enrolled in a doctoral program at a U.S. institution and who have completed all pre-dissertation requirements by the application deadline (July 1st).

The GLAAD Dissertation Fellowship Program aims to foster and promote rigorous scholarship as a vital form of intellectual activism. The program solicits proposals for original research on the cultural, economic and political dimensions of gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender representation, and how such representations are generated, interpreted, mobilized and contested in a variety of genres and contexts.

Examples of potential research topics include (but are not limited to): the effects of the economic and social organization of media industries on representations of sexual and gender identity; the formation and development of independent media sectors by and for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people; the reception of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender television characters by a range of audiences; public opinion on lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender issues; the development and political intervention of anti-gay media campaigns; the social and cultural significance of the erotic press for lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people; media coverage of legislative reform in contemporary and historical contexts; media images of AIDS activism and of people with AIDS/HIV; youth-oriented images of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people, including such educational materials as textbooks and classroom videos; queer cultures in cyberspace.

The GLAAD Dissertation Fellowship Program encourages disciplinary and methodological diversity, and thus seeks proposals from the humanities, social sciences, public health, public policy, education and allied fields.

To apply, applicants must submit a cover sheet as well as three (3) copies of: (1) a 6-8 page project description that demonstrates how the applicant's research addresses the themes of the fellowship program and that outlines the project's methodology or research approach; (2) a 2-page bibliography. Applications must also include a letter of recommendation from the applicant's academic supervisor that confirms eligibility, addresses the student's ability and preparation for his/her dissertation project, and addresses the project's original contribution to the field; as well as two additional letters of recommendation.

Completed applications must be received in GLAAD's New York office by July 1. Fellowship recipients will be announced in September.

For more information as well as application materials, visit the GLAAD website at <http://www.glaad.org>

United Church of Christ Gay Seminary Scholarships

The United Church of Christ (UCC) offers scholarships to lesbians and gay men who will work in church ministry. A $500,000 fund has been established and the church said it expects to award at least 10 students annually and hopes to double the fund. "This fund is a powerful reminder that the response to God's call to ministry should not be limited by economics or sexual orientation," says John H. Thomas, president of UCC.

The scholarship is named after the Rev. William R. Johnson, who in 1972 became the first openly gay man to be ordained by the UCC. He is currently a staff member at the church's national offices in Cleveland. Johnson said he is pleased to lend his name to the scholarship. In 1970 he lost his seminary field job when he came out as openly gay. He was only able to remain at the seminary after a church member arranged a scholarship.

The United Church of Christ was formed in 1957 with the merger of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church and is considered one of the most progressive denominations in regard to lesbian and gay issues. UCC identifies itself as "one of the most diverse Christian churches in the United States." Even as early as 1969, the church took a stand opposing sodomy laws and the military's ban on lesbians and gay men serving in the military.

Information on the W.R. Johnson Fund and other scholarship funds is available from Local Church Ministries, 216-736-3839.
